Auto's Plunge Hurts Woman

Janet S. Prossit, 23, of Weirton was injured severely Thursday at 5 p. m. when her auto plunged off Route 7 approxi-mately a mile north of Toronto and finally came to rest on the Ohio River shore.

She suffered severe head injuries, according to the State Highway Patrol at Wintersville, which investigated. The patrol said she was traveling south when she lost control on a curve and the car went off the left side of the highway.

The car traveled 84 feet along the berm, hurtled over an embankment of 45 feet and then slid 40 feet before coming to a halt on the river shore.

Alice E. Kountz of near Toronto escaped unhurt Thursday at 12:55 p. m. when her car skidded out of control and crashed into guardrails on Route 152 three miles east of Knoxville. She was cited on a charge of driving left of center.

A Wheeling woman was unhurt in a similar crash yesterday afternoon on Route 7 about a mile and a half south of the Jefferson - Columbiana County line. Mrs. Margaret Bishop, 54, told the patrol she lost control after her vision was obscured by slush thrown up from the highway by a passing car. The auto went off the right side of the highway and hit the guard-

Untie The Hands Of Congress

Informed guessers in Washington think the Senate will reverse the House decision to curb food sales to Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

They say this will be done because the Johnson administration does not want its hands tied in foreign policy. It wants authority to grant or withhold food to Nasser's regime. It wants bargaining

As it has turned out, the House of Representatives wanted bargaining power, too-204-177. The vote was surprising because the Johnson administration had been counting on its lopsided 295-140 majority to give it an easy victory.

Members of the House were more interested in untying their own hands in this detail of foreign policy than in keeping the State Department's hands untied.

President Nasser has done everything in his power to show contempt for the United States. He had insulted it in public speeches. He had caused aid to be sent to the rebels in the Congo

Under these circumstances, for the United States to be going out of its way to continue to send him food supplies was an affront to the feelings of the American people and their representatives in Con-

Perhaps it would be more sophisticated to retain bargaining power and use it to whatever advantage shows up. Perhaps the executive department's foreign policy strategy is more important than the legislative department's natural reaction to President Nasser's insults.

But doesn't it seem likely the American people, who also have something to say about foreign policy, are better pleased this way than they would be the other way? Doesn't this count for some-

County residents are looking forward to the new airfield as a spur to industrial

In Unity There Is What?

Because the dock strike on the Eastern seaboard is of wide-screen scope, it is easier to see than the isolated squabbles that are causing it.

When dock workers in the New York area refused to ratify negotiators' agreements with shipowners, thereby paralyzing East Coast shipping, no one knew what had gone wrong.

It wasn't the agreements; they were fine. No one had any objections.

Yet, for reasons that could not be explained, rank-and-file workers in the New York area failed to ratify them. And while they dallied, East Coast shipping was paralyzed. Then they reversed their original decision and ratified the agree-

The same trouble now has broken out among Baltimore dock workers-and East Coast shipping remains paralyzed. Under this system any master agreement, any broad pattern of industrywide bargaining, can be invalidated by any local union that fails to ratify.

Spirit Of The Times

By David Lawrence

Justice Warren Adds Vitality To Oath

Maybe Chief Justice Warren didn't make a slip, after all, when he administered the oath of office to Lyndon B. Johnson on I n a uguration Day. The C on s titution specifies the oath to be taken by an incoming president as folemnly swear (or affirm) David Lawrence that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.' When the chief justice read it at the inauguration this year, he spoke of "the office of the presidency of the United States." Mr. Johnson repeated the same words in taking the

This might seem to be merely a slight change in the wording of the oath, but actually it could have more meaning than appears on the surface. For, in prescribing the exact words of the oath, the Founding Fathers perhaps didn't realize that, with the passage of time, people would be inclined to speak of "the office of the presidency" as being at least modernized and up-to-date. Again and again, the Constitution has been interpreted by the highest court in the land to have meanings which the framers of the Constitution may not have thought of but which, in the development of the Republic, now are considered by many to be applicable.

TOO OFTEN, unfortunately, those who have criticized the Supreme Court have forgotten that, in the evolution of American life, many changes have occurred, and it may be noted that "the office of the presidency" comprehends far more today than it ever did before in the history of the American republic

The powers of the presidency now are manifold, and the responsibilities of the office are more extensive than they were a century or more ago.

The school of thought which believes that the Constitution should be "modernized" - not necessarily by the people in the prescribed way but by the Supreme Court in its opinionshas argued again and again that the Supreme Court has the power to interpret the Constitution in the light of the changes that have occurred.

Thus, in the famous desegregation decision of 1954, the Supreme Court brushed aside all precedents and said that it had discovered new meanings for constitutional provisions, which it promptly applied as "the law of the land.

Indeed, looking somewhat dis-passionately at the words of the oath prescribed for the chief executive, some will say that the phraseology is clumsy when a new chief executive is asked to promise that he will "execute the office of president."

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY, moreover, gives the word "presidency" specifically as a synonym for the phrase "the office of president of the United States." So that, strictly speaking, it would not be necessary to use the word "office" at all.

A future chief executive taking the oath could promise to execute the duties of the presidency," and it would be far clearer. The Supreme Court of the United States once said:

"For with the Constitution, as with a statute or other written instrument, what is reasonably implied is as much a part of it as what is expressed.

Doubtless there will be the usual captious critics who will raise a question as to whether Mr. Johnson was constitutionally inaugurated since he did not actually speak the words of an oath identical with what is prescribed in the Constitution.

There are always legalists who look at things literally, instead of recognizing that some meanings become obsolete and that the spirit of the words of the Constitution is considered today more important than any fidelity to literalism - which seems also to have become oldfashioned.

IF THERE are any doubts on the subject, they may be dismissed because, after all, it seems unlikely that members of the Supreme Court would ever countenance for one moment the idea that anything a chief justice said in reading from the Constitution could possibly be due to a misprint or be a misreading of the text.

As a matter of fact, the new school of thought would probably be able to make a very good argument in favor of changing future oaths to conform to what Chief Justice Warren proclaimed on Jan. 20 this

It indeed, can be argued that Mr. Warren has certainly improved the wording of the oath and given it more vitality and freshness and that he has brought it more within "the spirit of the times" than his president recited the oath on Inauguration Day.

Electoral College Issue

By James Marlow

President Johnson proposes knocking the electoral college, as used in American history. out the window. The reason: to prevent thwarting voters in their choice of president and vice president.

Under the present system the electors who make up the electoral college are free to name anyone they please for president, no matter whom the voters cast the most ballots for.

Since 1796 the electors have been hardly more than puppets, simply voting as the people in their states indicated on election day. There have been a few exceptions. In any election there could be a lot.

Johnson wants to prevent any. So he suggested to Congress Thursday a constitutional amendment eliminating individual electors but retaining the electoral college. Each state now is entitled to as many electors as it has representatives and senators in Congress. And, traditionally, the presidential candidate getting the most popular votes in a state gets all its electoral votes. Johnson would retain the arrangement giving a state as many electoral votes as it has representatives and senators. But he'd add this to the Constitution A state would have to cast all its electoral votes - it would have no choice - for the candidate getting the most popular votes. In this way there would be no need for electors. And therefore no chance for them to cross up the voters.

But Johnson proposed other measures in the same amend-

Under the Constitution now, no matter what the popular vote showed, if no presidential candidate gets a majority of the electoral vote, the House must elect a president from the three toprunners.

And, if there is no majority of the electoral vote for a vicepresidential candidate, the Senate does the electing from the top three.

Johnson suggests that if

WASHINGTON case like either of these arises, then the House and Senate together do the electing.

> Then suppose this happens: The electoral college formally elects a president and vice president but the president-to-be dies before taking office. What happens? Does the vice president automatically become president? No.

The electoral college is free to choose a president without regard for what the popular election showed. Johnson wants the vice president-elect in such circumstances to become president when the new term begins.

If, turning that same situation around, the vice president-elect died before taking office, Johnson wants the new president to pick a vice president to serve with him, provided, however, that Congress approves.

This arrangement is already provided for in another constitutional amendment which has been banging around in Congress for many months and seems likely to be approved this year and then sent to the states for ratification.

This same proposed amendment - introduced by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and 75 other senators as cosponsors - would also take care of presidential disability and has Johnson's full approval.

It covers the old question: How does a vice president take over if a president is unable to do his job but doesn't realize it or refuses to admit it?

For Hancock Georgetown Man 99

Robert Lincoln (Link) Laughlin, a great - greatgrandfather 22 times, cele-brated his 99th birthday anniversary today, retaining his title as Georgetown's oldest

A former riverman, pipeline worker and farmer, he resides alternately with a grandson and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Campbell, of Georgetown, and a granddaughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, of Hookstown. Born in Georgetown, he has lived in the area all his life.

Of his several careers, Laughlin said he liked farming best. He never owned a farm of his own, but at the turn of the century he worked on the farm of Arch Neal, which is now the site of the Crucible Steel Co.'s Midland

Q. I don't have arthritis (no pain) but lately the joints of both index fingers have become lumpy. The fingers tend to be crooked. Are there any exercises I can do to keep my fingers straight?

A. You may or may not have arthritis so it would be best to have a medical examination. Arthritis follows many patterns and may even progress with little or no pain. Neglected treatment often accounts for hand deformity although it must be admitted that treatment may fail to halt or correct finger crookedness.

BALD MEN

Q. Does anyone know what causes baldness in men?

A. Male-type baldness is an inherited tendency of certain scalp hair follicles to become pro-gressively transformed so that they produce downy hairs rather than coarse hairs. This process is completely unrelated to such factors as scalp circulation, dandruff, scalp "tension," or the wearing or nonwearing of hats. Further, male pattern baldness, occurring in an adult male, is not due to excessive production of male sex hormone, reassuring as this popular fallacy may

E. L. Review: Jan. 15, 22, 29, Feb. 5, 12, 1965.

The heart of the matter conreerns whistle signals used for passing and in fog. Currently on the Great Lakes, ship whistles are blown in all weather regardless of whether the pilot is able to see a passing vessel. On other waterways the other vessel must be in sight before the passing signal is given. Great Lakes ship masters argued that in an emergency an officer is likely to resort to rules and signals he has been following and that any changes would result in more collisions.

A Junior Editors Quiz About THE ANCIENT WORLD

the Seven Wonders of the ancient world?

ANSWER: In 100 B.C., a Greek traveler, Antipater of Sidon, drew up a list of the seven most wonderful sights of his time. All were buildings or statues. We illustrate Antipater's list. (1), the Pyramids of Egypt, are the only ancient wonder still to be seen. (2), The Hanging Gardens of Babylon, built by King Nebuchadnezzar to please his new wife, made green paradise in a desert city. (3) is the Pharos of Alexandria, a lighthouse 400 feet high. The great statue of the sun god called the "Colossus of Rhodes" (4) gave us our modern word "colossal." (5) was the 40-foot high statue of Zeus with gleaming jewels for eyes. The Temple of Diana (6) had huge columns over 60 feet high. (7), the Mausoleum at Helicarnassus, was erected by a queen as a tomb for her husband, King Mausolus. This gave us our word "mauso-

People who have travelled widely in our modern world have selected Seven Wonders of the modern world. See if you can imagine what they might be, and then check with the actual list below.

FOR YOU TO DO: Check your list with these seven modern Wonders. (1) is the Suez Canal, (2) the Dneproges Dam in Russia, (3) the Atomic Energy Research Establishment in England, (4) the Alaskan Highway, also called Alcan, (5) the Golden Gate Bridge near San Francisco, (6) the Eiffel Tower in Paris and (7) the Empire State Building in New York.

FLINTSTONES WHAT DO YOU THINK THE TROUBLE

RIP KIRBY

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a college graduate. My husband dropped out of high school in the 10th grade when his father died. I didn't notice the wide intellectual gulf that separated Henry and me until we had been married several months.

Henry's grammar is so bad it is embarrassing. He is not informed on world affairs. When he attempts to discuss politics it's apparent he hasn't read a

The friends Henry brings home from the office are uninformed and shallow. Their Teener On Spot wives are stupid and dull. I've abandoned all hope of com-municating with them.

What can a wife do when she is starved intellectually? I've met some bright women through death of most dogs, and espemy club work but I wouldn't dream of inviting them and their husbands to our home. They would be bored to death by Henry.

Any advice? — ONE WHO TRADED DOWN.

Dear Traded: Maybe these dull wives can't distinguish be-tween a Picasso and a hole in the rug but you might Satisfy your intellectual appetite in the afternoon, Kiddo. If you were half as smart as you think you are you wouldn't be knocking your husband's limited education. You'd be building him up for doing as well as he has in

P.S.: He was smart enough to marry you, wasn't he?

Dear Ann: I'm a 13-year-old girl with a problem. A few weeks ago we got a dog named Spot. My best girl friend (I will call her Donna) is scared to cially Spot.
